

PEOPLE HYSTERICAL
SAYS EASTERN SOLON

Boston, Jan. 24.—The people are hysterical, declared Senator Samuel May Jr., in a speech before the House today, in response to a resolution passed by the House on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. The speaker said that the people are hysterical, and that the government should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly. He said that the people are hysterical, and that the government should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

EX-SERVICE INSURANCE.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Under the amendment to the law providing for the insurance of ex-servicemen, which became a law on Jan. 24, 1919, the United States government will be able to pay to the ex-servicemen the cost of their medical care, and to provide for the insurance of their families. The law provides that the government will pay the cost of the medical care of the ex-servicemen, and will provide for the insurance of their families.

UNREST PORCE A FORCE.

Olympia, Wash., Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

OPPOSE ANTI-STRIKE LAW.

Ottawa, Ontario, Jan. 24.—Demand for the repeal of the anti-strike law, which was passed by the Ontario legislature on Jan. 24, 1919, is increasing, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the law is oppressive, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

OPPOSE AIRSHIP ACT.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The Senate is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the Senate is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

HOW DO TRAINMEN LIVE?

Washington, Jan. 24.—The Senate is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the Senate is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

SAYS MR. POINDEXTER.

New York, Jan. 24.—The Senate is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the Senate is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

DO RAILWAY MANAGERS
TREAT U. S. FAIRLY?

Chicago, Jan. 24.—If government control of railroads is a failure, it will be because the railway managers have not been treated fairly, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the railway managers have not been treated fairly, and that the government should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

PROBE TRAIN CONTROL.

Washington, Jan. 24.—After a year's investigation of the control of the railroads, a committee of the United States Senate will report on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. The committee will report on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly.

MUCH ILLITERACY.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

WORKING CHILDREN UNFIT.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

WANT TWO-PLATOON.

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

STOP STREET CARS.

Salem, Mass., Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

PROFIT 'SHARING'.

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

“Peace Time Sedition Bill Would Destroy Liberty”--Gompers

Washington, Jan. 24.—The Sterling-Graham peace-time sedition bill, now pending in Congress, would destroy the constitution and the rights of free speech and assembly, declared Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a speech before the House today, in response to a resolution passed by the House on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the bill would destroy the constitution and the rights of free speech and assembly.

WOULD REPEAL PROFITS TAX.

New York, Jan. 24.—The federal excess profits tax is a failure, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the tax is a failure, and that the government should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

MILLIONS OF ACRES
GIVEN TO RAILROADS.

Washington, Jan. 24.—In a speech in the Senate today, Senator Charles McNary declared that the federal government had given millions of acres of land to the railroads. He said that the government had given millions of acres of land to the railroads.

STEEL STRIKERS' STICK.

Lakewood, N. Y., Jan. 24.—The steel strikers are not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the strikers are not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

METAL POLISHERS WIN.

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 24.—The metal polishers have won, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the polishers have won, and that the government should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

WANT TWO-PLATOON.

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

BARBERS RAISE WAGES.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—The barbers have raised their wages, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the barbers have raised their wages, and that the government should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

WEEKLY NEWS LETTER
WASHINGTON, D. C., SATURDAY, JANUARY 24, 1920.

Political Party Swept Into Oblivion;
Paid Costly Price For Its Disloyalty

Washington, Jan. 24.—The political party which was swept into oblivion by the people, paid a costly price for its disloyalty, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the party paid a costly price for its disloyalty.

RECENT STEEL STRIKE
HAS VALUED LESSONS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 24.—The recent steel strike has taught valuable lessons, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the strike has taught valuable lessons.

STEEL STRIKE NOT LOST

San Francisco, Jan. 24.—The steel strike is not a failure, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the strike is not a failure, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

INCLUDE $5 PATRIOTS
IN DEPORTATION PLAN

Washington, Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

MOLDERS AGAIN OUT

Dubuque, Iowa, Jan. 24.—The molders are out, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the molders are out, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

RESIST ANTI-UNIONISTS.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 24.—The anti-unionists are not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the anti-unionists are not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

MISS TALKS STRIKE.

New York, Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

AGITATE!
EDUCATE!
ORGANIZE!

Washington, Jan. 24.—The people should agitate, educate, and organize, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the people should agitate, educate, and organize.

RECENT STEEL STRIKE
HAS VALUED LESSONS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 24.—The recent steel strike has taught valuable lessons, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the strike has taught valuable lessons.

APPEAL FOR UNITY.

New York, Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

WANT SIX HOURS' WORK.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

SCORE INJUNCTION JUDGE.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 24.—The injunction judge has scored, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the judge has scored, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

CAPITALIZE JUNK.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.

WANT AN HOUR.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The United States government is not a force, declared Senator Charles McNary, in a speech before the Senate today, in response to a resolution passed by the Senate on the subject of the right of free speech and assembly. He said that the government is not a force, and that the people should take steps to protect the rights of free speech and assembly.